Rice with fried egg on top is so good. Oyster soy sauce is delicious. The editor in chief at a magazine I used to draw for long ago once started a rumor that I can swallow five or six boiled eggs whole at a time, but I have a rule that I eat only one or two eggs a day, so it's not true. —Ai Morinaga

Honorifics Explained

Throughout the Del Rey Manga books, you will find Japanese honorifics left intact in the translations. For those not familiar with how the Japanese use honorifics and, more important, how they differ from American honorifics, we present this brief overview.

Politeness has always been a critical facet of Japanese culture. Ever since the feudal era, when Japan was a highly stratified society, use of honorifics—which can be defined as polite speech that indicates relationship or status—has played an essential role in the Japanese language. When addressing someone in Japanese, an honorific usually takes the form of a suffix attached to one's name (example: "Asuna-san"), is used as a title at the end of one's name, or appears in place of the name itself (example: "Negi-sensei," or simply "Sensei!").

Honorifics can be expressions of respect or endearment. In the context of manga and anime, honorifics give insight into the nature of the relationship between characters. Many English translations leave out these important honorifics and therefore distort the feel of the original Japanese. Because Japanese honorifics contain nuances that English honorifics lack, it is our policy at Del Rey not to translate them. Here, instead, is a guide to some of the honorifics you may encounter in Del Rey Manga.

-san: This is the most common honorific and is equivalent to Mr., Miss, Ms., or Mrs. It is the all-purpose honorific and can be used in any situation where politeness is required.

-sama: This is one level higher than "-san" and is used to confer great respect.

-dono: This comes from the word "tono," which means "lord." It is an even higher level than "-sama" and confers utmost respect.

-kun: This suffix is used at the end of boys' names to express familiarity or endearment. It is also sometimes used by men among friends, or when addressing someone younger or of a lower station.

-chan: This is used to express endearment, mostly toward girls. It is also used for little boys, pets, and even among lovers. It gives a sense of childish cuteness.

Bozu: This is an informal way to refer to a boy, similar to the English terms "kid" and "squirt."

Sempai/Senpai: This title suggests that the addressee is one's senior in a group or organization. It is most often used in a school setting, where underclassmen refer to their upperclassmen as "sempai." It can also be used in the workplace, such as when a newer employee addresses an employee who has seniority in the company.

Kohai: This is the opposite of "sempai" and is used toward underclassmen in school or newcomers in the workplace. It connotes that the addressee is of a lower station.

Sensei: Literally meaning "one who has come before," this title is used for teachers, doctors, or masters of any profession or art.

-[blank]: This is usually forgotten in these lists, but it is perhaps the most significant difference between Japanese and English. The lack of honorific means that the speaker has permission to address the person in a very intimate way. Usually, only family, spouses, or very close friends have this kind of permission. Known as yobisute, it can be gratifying when someone who has earned the intimacy starts to call one by one's name without an honorific. But when that intimacy hasn't been earned, it can be very insulting.

The snack for today is kintoki and cream-filled rolls, ordered specially from Ehime!
Yaaaaaay ♡
Anko and fresh cream go good together. ♡♡
Tea, tea
And the anko's yummy, too!
Wooow! They're stuffed with fresh cream. ♡

Is this the way to the field hockey club room?
Gentlemen.
Yay! I get two. ♡
Don't mind if I do!
I wonder how many calories are in these things.
This is all gonna go right to Hana's hips.
Hey! I want to enjoy this, so please stop talking like that now!

Excuse me, gentlemen.
I'm looking for the field hockey club room. Am I in the right place?

Today, it is good luck to enter your destination from the southeast.
Heh heh heh
I have accomplished my objective.
ぽかーーーーん
GAAAAPE
Indeed, I had thought it would be impossible, but it opened fairly easily!
You can't just bust holes in people's walls!!
Why, you! What the hell are you doing!!?

Oh, yes! Now that it's here, you may use this as an entrance and exit.
A southeastern entrance will bring you good luck.
Where?
Uh...
Um...
Incidentally, in what year of the Zodiac were you born?
The...
The Year of the Dragon...
The Dragon!?
FLINCH
Um, do you have some business here?

Sigh...
Unfortunate indeed. I am incompatible with those born in the Year of the Dragon.

.....
As of today, I will be the advisor to this hockey club. I am Saint-Martin.
How do you do?
My kintoki cream roll...
Ramen!

A Frenchman?
Would you please refrain from addressing me in that fanboyish tone?
Mar-tan.
Oh.
Hana-chan, that's Maru-chan.
It was only just decided in the faculty office.
I never heard anything about an advisor.
Advisor?
Classical Japanese...?
Blond hair
Blue eyes
As of tomorrow, I will be filling in for the classical Japanese literature teacher, Miyamoto-sensei, who is out on maternity leave.
Dunno.
Heh heh.
Did our school actually hire this guy?

But it does!
We appreciate the offer, but our club doesn't need an advisor.
I don't have any interest in her, though.
But I hear she's pretty accurate.
My mom is a Verna-teer, too.
What's a Verna-teer?
Chinese Astrologer Yoshiko Vernaccia-sensei
According to Yoshiko Vernaccia-sensei's fortune this morning, anything decided today is Heaven's decree, and if I don't carry it out, I will die!
You're too old to use fortune-telling to decide your actions!

He's right. With us, it's only about image, anyway.
It's actually more strange that we haven't had an advisor for so long.
Well, why not?
Erk...
Oh, so your mother is a Verna-teer!
She's even bought the "Better Fortune Notebook."
We're confreres!
Hey, Hana!

Well...
I guess it can't be helped.
.....

Of course...
Is it different somehow?
So? What is field hockey?
Is it not ice hockey?

The whole school's been buzzing with rumors about Mar-tan all day.
Well, he stands out.
When you're that weird...
I hear his first name is Yukio.
Apparently his dad's a Japanophile, and adored Yukio Mishima.
Must be a weird family.
DIIIING DOOOONG
It's incredible, isn't it?
Ah, you've finally arrived!

I've tired of waiting for you. How long were you intending to make me wait?
Full name: Yukio Francois de Saint-Martin
Hurry on over here.
"What," he asks. Why, I'm playing hockey, of course.
No, we just play when we feel like it.
Wha—
What are you doing?

What are you saying? I will play!!
Here, take this.
I will come in dribbling from over there, so if you would be so kind as to film from this angle.
I shall show you my magnificent form as I float like a butterfly and sting like a bee.
Heh.
I am your advisor, after all. I must set an example!

Shine the lights from lower down!
Did you get that splendid shot!?
.....
Now! Bring the camera closer!

My club...
When did we become the movie club?
HEARTBREAK
What are you doing, Izumi-sempai?
As long as I look good, it's okay!
Young men mustn't worry about such minor details!
S-Sensei. You're supposed to shoot from inside the circle...
Heh.
It's all right. You don't have to have gotten a shot of when I looked my absolute best.
Don't worry about it.
Although it was an incredibly fantastic shot.
No, it doesn't bother me.

It really doesn't bother me at all!!
It...
It's hard to move in this, so I'm going to change...
Field Hockey Club
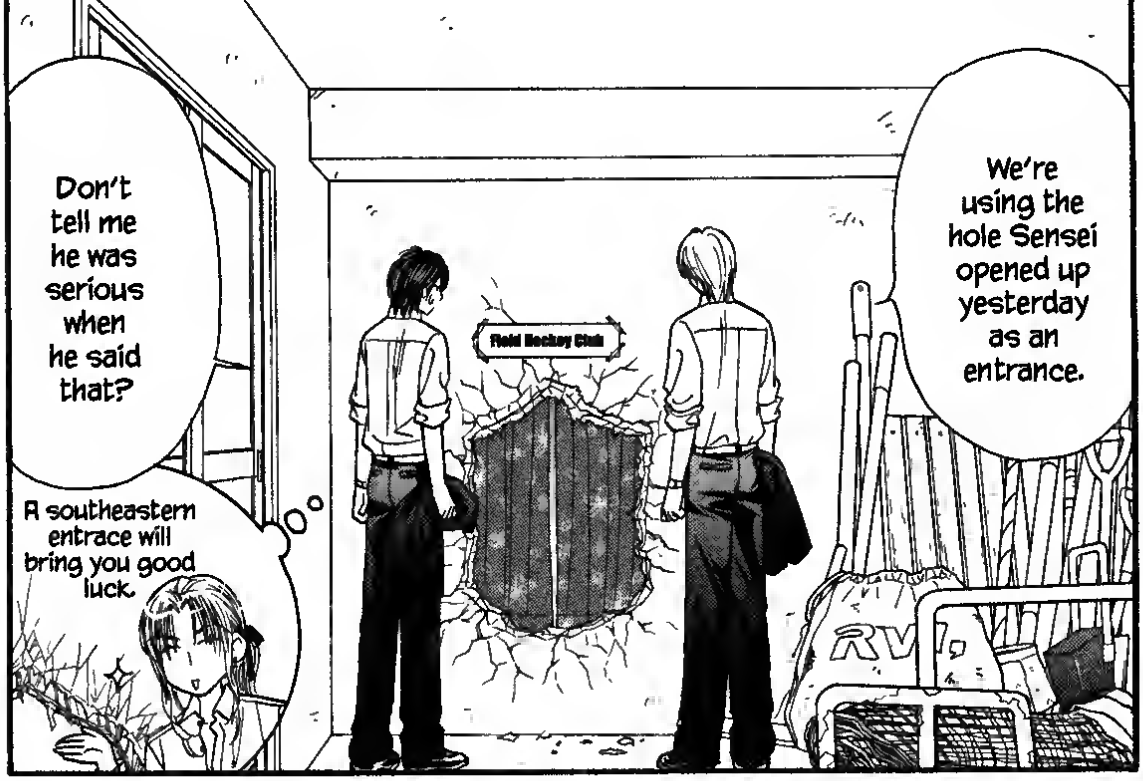
What is this?
Please use the door on the right - Field Hockey Club
Sorry. I'm feeling a little light-headed...
You okay, Izumi?
Izumi, over here.



Don't tell me he was serious when he said that?
A southeastern entrace will bring you good luck.
Field Hockey Club
We're using the hole Sensei opened up yesterday as an entrance.

Depending on how you look at it, you could call it kitschy, I guess...

What the hell is this!?
He...
He redecorated?
When did he...?
My eyes hurt...
Garish...
Waaahh! Wacky!
A pink flower pattern!?
BAKAWK

Heh heh heh
Now we need only do some heavy cleaning, and the hockey club's luck will increase exponentially.
I've made it into a Good Luck Room using "Vernaccia-style Better Fortune's Happy Feng Shui"
Well? Don't you love it?
Heh

Oh, the club funds weren't enough to cover the redecoration, so that will be 5,000 yen* each.
Now, now, don't be shy.
It doesn't need to increase exponentially, so please put it back the way it was right now!

Perhaps I should have made them flashier.
Yeah...

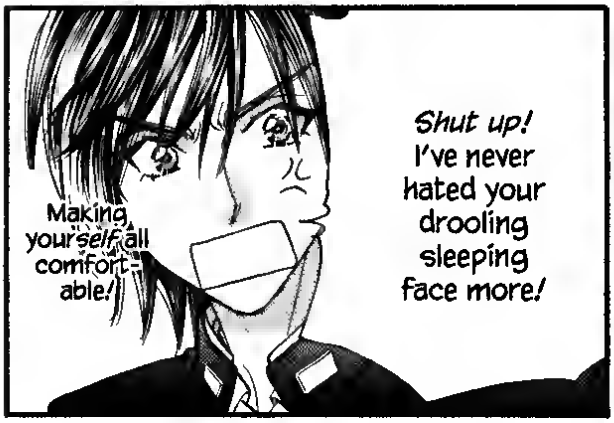
You're right.
He may be a teacher, but I can't put up with this self-absorbed fortune freak!

I can't take it anymore.

Why not think of it as a relative watching videos of his grand-kids?
Eh—? You don't have to get so bent out of shape.



Making yourself all comfort-able!
Shut up! I've never hated your drooling sleeping face more!

Unlike you, I'm sensitive!
How am I supposed to sleep with him blathering on right next me!?
Ergh!
Then you could just sleep yourself, Izumi-sempai!
Ugh, this is why I hate blood type B!
SNAP
What's that supposed to mean!? You complain about Sensei being a fortune freak and then you say that!?
You're following blood-type fortunes, aren't you!?
Just a second, Izumi-sempai, are you being infected by Mar-tan?
Ergh...
He doesn't seem the type to be affected by bullying.
How about a boycott?
Anyway, we have to think of some way to get rid of him.

Hmmmm.
That's true...

That's it!

May I speak frankly?

Eeehh!?
Will you read my fortune!?

You are going to die.

GULP
If you don't quit being the hockey club's advisor right now, you will die a humiliating death.
...I
I-I-I-I-I'll quit!
Immediately!!
That's a good boy.

Yessss!!
You are to honor your ancestors.
Make sure you visit their graves.
Thank you very much!!
Please don't worry about us!
Well, there you have it. I apologize, everyone.

Our relationship is flashing before my eyes...
It was only for a short while, but thank you for everything.
But when I'm with you, Sensei, a minute feels like an hour.
We'll miss you when you're gone, but there is no substitute for your life, Sensei.
Really, thank you very much.
Gentlemen...

Your teacher was wrong...!
Wha—?

Eh?
Um.
Uh.
I am a disgrace to Kinpachi-sensei...!
To think I would abandon these students who love me so dearly for my own safety.
I have failed as a teacher.
I'll never say I'm going to quit again.
I'm sorry.

That, too, makes me wonderful...!!
For you, I would gladly die!!!
...N...
I'm so virtuous.
人徳だ
Heh heh heh! I truly am blessed to be loved by my students so.
He's right! Your life is far more important, Sensei!
No! What are you saying!?

I am glad to have become the hockey club advisor.
I look forward to our continued relationship.

EXHAUSTION
Hmmm
I think we'll go with spiritualism from now on.
And so the hockey club gained an advisor.

The End

Hello! We're already at volume 6, Madame. I get one page for an afterword, so this time, I would like to discuss something that happened at work. A discussion between my assistants, M-san and T-san, after seeing the cover page for chapter 24.

This

T: "Izumi-sempai's nipple is too big."

M: "Let me see. It really is huge. But isn't that the areola? Not the nipple."

T: "Oh, okay! Ah ha ha."

Me: "You're all so mean...!"

Poor me

~I ran off crying~

~Fin~

As expected, nipples are not that big. It's scary. This has been a very frightening story. After writing this far, I wonder about this afterword, but since I'm out of time, we'll say it's good enough.

Translation Notes

Japanese is a tricky language for most Westerners, and translation is often more art than science. For your edification and reading pleasure, here are notes on some of the places where we could have gone in a different direction with our translation of the work, or where a Japanese cultural reference is used.

Kintoki is a kind of red bean. In this case, it's been made into a jam and put into a roll with cream.

Anko is the general term for red bean paste or jam.

Maru-chan, Mar-tan, page 13

Because Martin is originally French, his name is pronounced more like "Martan." In Japanese, "-tan" is kind of a cutesy way of saying "-chan," so it's no wonder Hana would hear it and think of the instant ramen brand Maru-chan. Fanboys in reference to their favorite female characters also use "-tan," hence Martin's later comment.

Classical Japanese, page 13

Classical Japanese literature is all written in Japanese so old that it's almost like a completely different language. Martin's familiarity with this language is a rare attainment—one that shows just how committed a Japanophile this Frenchman is.

Yukio Mishima, page 16

Yukio Mishima is a famous Japanese author from the '50s and '60s, known for such works as Haru no Yuki (Spring Snow). He committed ritual suicide in 1970.

Kinpachi-sensei, page 41

Kinpachi-sensei is the main character of the Japanese soap opera of the same name. Despite having many of his own serious problems, he is constantly helping his students with their social and psychological problems, which are often quite extreme.

Spiritualism, page 43

Spiritualism refers to a religious movement that asserts that spirits can be contacted through a medium.

Oni underpants, page 49

Much like we have "On Top of Spaghetti" and "Found a Peanut," the Japanese have altered the lyrics to the familiar song "Funiculì Funiculà" to make it a song about wearing oni underpants. An oni is a Japanese demon known for its horns and tiger stripes, so oni underpants have a tiger-stripe pattern.

A sportsman must temper his body and mind, after all.
At the shukubô of this Zen temple, we can experience Zen meditation at a reasonable price!
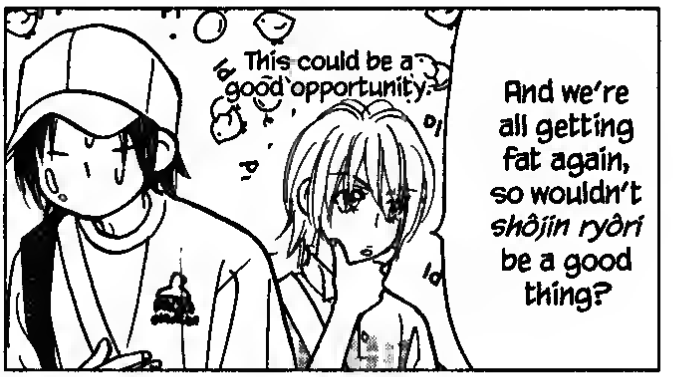
WHEEZE

Zen meditation experience, page 50

It isn't uncommon in Japan for organizations to take their members to a Zen temple to meditate, thus improving their concentration and performance.

Shôjin ryôri, page 54

Japanese for "purification cooking," this is a style of vegetarian cuisine eaten by priests and other devout Buddhists.



Ume, page 57

The Japanese sometimes use a three-tier ranking system of shouchikubai (pine bamboo plum), where the ranks are matsu (pine), take (bamboo), and ume (plum). Ume indicates the lowest rank, or in this case, a small-sized meal. Take and matsu would be medium and large, respectively.

WHAP, page 57

When doing Zen meditation at a retreat, there is usually a priest overseeing your meditation who will hit you when you are not meditating properly so that you will learn to improve your focus.

Jîya, page 58

A jîya is an elderly servant, kind of like a nanny, but male.

Shuriken, page 62

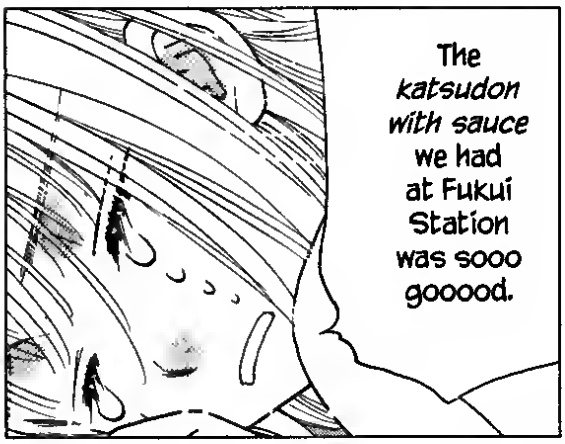
Also known as ninja throwing stars.

Isn't made for being a ninja, page 62

Ninja, in Japanese, literally means "person with stealth," and a good ninja would be able to stay invisible at all times. Martin calls attention to himself in everything he does, and so would not make a very good ninja.

Call 119, page 64

119 is the Japanese equivalent of 911.

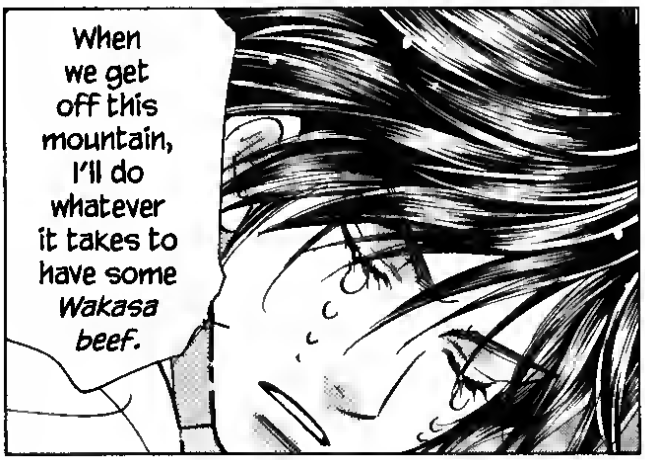


Katsudon, page 66

Breaded pork on rice.

Wakasa beef, page 66

Wakasa is a town in Fukui Prefecture, where the club is staying, and one of several places in the Kansai area where the beef is especially good because of the fresh water there for the cattle to drink.



Yakiniku, page 66

A Japanese dish of fried meat.

Butamin, page 68

Butamin is a combination of "buta (pig)" and "vitamin." Martin is referring to the vitamins one gets from pork.

Long live katsudon with sauce!
Pork is good for the skin, too. The power of butamin.
I didn't get any at the station, so I asked a priest to pick some up for me while he was out shopping.
BELCH

Bara Shuriken Attack, page 76

Rose Throwing Star Attack.

Shinkansen, page 82

The shinkansen is the bullet train.

Ekiben, page 82

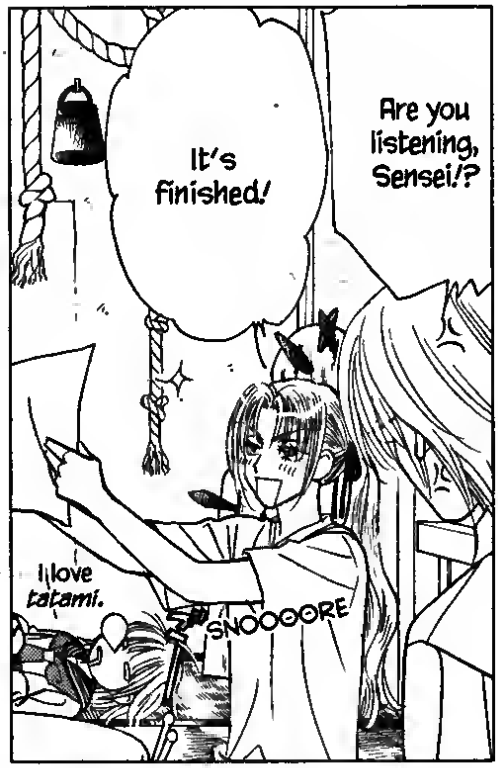
Ekiben comes from eki (train station) and bentô (or obentô—boxed lunch). In other words, it's a lunch that you buy at the station.

Echizen crab, page 82

Echizen is another place in Fukui, known for its seafood, especially crab.

Tarezô, page 84

Tareru means "to hang" or "dangle," and zô is a suffix to make it a name. This may be a reference to the egg that Wacky started to lay, so it was sort of dangling.



Tatami, page 87

A straw floor covering used for Japanese-style rooms. Because ninja are from Japan, it's only natural that they would have a Japanese-style room.

Kokkuri-san, page 87

Kokkuri-san is the Japanese name for Ouija board. Because in Japanese tradition foxes, or kitsune, are thought to have supernatural powers, it is believed that the marker, often a coin, is moved not by a spirit of the dead, but by a spirit of a fox, called Kokkuri-san. In most legends, foxes are female. The board the hockey club is using uses Japanese characters instead of the alphabet.

Johnny Depp, page 90

The way Japanese writing works, "Johnny Depp" would be written "Shi Yo Ni Te Tsu Fu." The Shi and Te would have marks looking like quotation marks to alter the sounds, making them Ji and De, and the Fu would have a mark like a degree symbol to make it Pu. The Yo is made smaller to make the Ji a Jyo, and the Tsu would be smaller to emphasize the first sound of Pu, so it ends up like Jyoni Deppu. The Kokkuri-san board doesn't have smaller characters, quotation marks, or degree symbols.

Aho, page 92

Aho is one of many ways to call someone an idiot in Japanese.

Maccha dorayaki, page 95

Dorayaki is a Japanese pastry made of two sponge cakes with a filling between them, kind of like a jelly donut. Maccha is green tea and refers to the flavor of the filling.

Abura-age, page 97

Abura-age is fried tofu. According to legend, as Martin says, it is a favorite food of foxes.

Inarizushi, page 106

Sushi rice in a pouch of fried tofu. It is named after the deity Inari, who is represented as a fox.

Shown your tail, page 117

Because foxes and the like were thought to disguise themselves as humans, the phrase "to show one's tail" has come to refer to when someone shows their true colors.

Seimei, page 118

Abe no Seimei is a famous Onmyôji, or Yin-Yang Master. Onmyôji were in charge of protecting the capital from evil spirits. It's no wonder Martin would want to name his dog after him.

Kinds of inari, page 123

Gomoku inari is inarizushi with gomoku rice, or rice mixed with vegetables. Takowasa inari is inarizushi with tako (octopus) and wasabi. Rebanira means "liver-leek," so rebanira inari would be inarizushi with liver and leeks.

Bishônen, page 130

Pretty boy.

Dôjinshi, page 132

A magazine published by fans, often fan-fiction manga.

Otaku, page 134
Japanese for "geek" or "nerd", especially one who is obsessed with something.

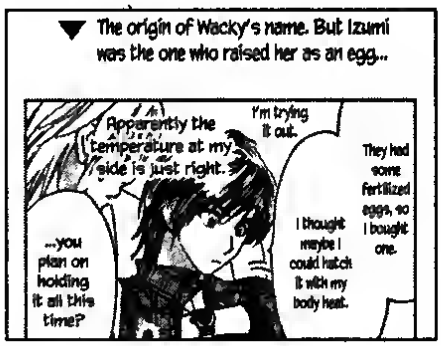
Shishô, page 140
A master or teacher.

My name is not helping, page 141
Moé is a phrase used by fanboys and fangirls to describe the type of character from an anime or video game that they have a particular attraction to, and the strong feelings that those characters inspire.

Omamori, page 145
Omamori comes from mamoru (to protect) and refers to a protective charm.

Nattô, page 167
Fermented soybeans.

Wacky's name, page 167
In this scene, Izumi tells Takashi that he will keep the egg containing Wacky by his side, or in Japanese, by his waki, and that's where Hana got the idea to call the egg Wacky.



The origin of Wacky's name. But Izumi was the one who raised her as an egg...
Apparently the temperature at my side is just right.
I'm trying it out.
They had some fertilized eggs, so I bought one.
I thought maybe I could hatch it with my body heat.
...you plan on holding it all this time?
